New technology plan

Centre for generating and exporting knowledge In 2008 the need arose for MTC to take a definitive leap forward in terms of the value it offered. This leap will lead to a new, extended, reorganised MTC where integrated decoration solutions can be developed and new functional developments made; where engineering resources, design capabilities and research and development come together in a suitable environment, with unique laboratories and resources, with a pilot production line unique to the sector that will make simulation possible on a pre-industrial scale together with validation of all the new innovation and development requirements. This will enable MTC to become a centre for the capitalisation of knowledge capable of exporting that knowledge to the current and future plants of MTC´s and Maier´s partners. The construction of this new centre will start in July 2009, and it will come into operation 15 months later. Future newsletters will provide more information about the content and new areas of the centre.
